Report of the Texas Economic Development Act

Executive Summary

The Texas Economic Development Act (Chapter 313 of the Tax Code), allows school districts to attract new taxable property development by offering a value limitation on the appraised value of the property for the maintenance and operations portion of the school district property tax.<sup>1</sup> The local tax revenue the school district forgoes in this manner is substantially replaced through the school funding formula.

Owners of Chapter 313 projects have invested approximately $59.5 billion in Texas through 2013, and have projected a $126.4 billion investment over the lifetime of the project agreements. This report addresses the requirement in the statute for the Comptroller to submit a report to the legislature “assessing the progress of each agreement.” It weighs the progress of agreements made through May 15, 2014, based on information collected from the school districts and the agreements’ beneficiaries. This report also includes information not required by statute and is provided for informational purposes only.

The report highlights some important issues that may be useful to legislators and others, including:

- Of the 259 active projects (as of May 2014), 45 percent are manufacturing and 53 percent are renewable energy.
- Of the $123 billion estimated investment under the 259 agreements, 76 percent of the investments are in manufacturing and 21 percent are in renewable energy. The other three percent of the investments are in research and development and electric power generation (Integrated Gasification Combined Cycle). Two nuclear electric power generation projects did not report any investment for the length of the agreement.
- Of the 5,487 qualifying jobs committed to be created under these 259 project agreements, 89 percent are in manufacturing and 10 percent are in renewable energy. The other one percent of jobs are in research and development.
- Of the estimated gross tax benefit of $5.5 billion, manufacturing projects are estimated to receive 72 percent, renewable energy projects are estimated to receive 26 percent and the other two percent of gross tax benefits are received by research and development and electric power generation (Integrated Gasification Combined Cycle). Two nuclear energy projects did not report any estimated tax benefit for the length of the agreement.
- Renewable energy projects are returning 20 percent of their tax benefits back to the school districts through supplemental payments, while research and development and manufacturing projects are paying 14 percent and 13 percent respectively in supplemental payments.

Current Agreements

Table 1 pertains to Section 313.032, and describes projects by the following eight eligibility categories: manufacturing, research and development, clean coal projects, advanced clean energy projects, renewable electric generation (wind), renewable electric generation (non-wind), electric power generation (integrated gasification combined cycle) and nuclear electric power generation. Priority projects and computer centers primarily used in connection with the other eight eligibility categories were added with HB 3390; however there have been no applications under these categories.

Revenue Payments

Chapter 313 includes three types of allowable payments from the business to the school district. The statute requires that each agreement includes “revenue protection payments,” to ensure that the district does not see a decrease in revenues due to the agreement. The second type of payment is referred to as “supplemental payments.” The following tables provide information on these additional payments, both by year (Table 4A) and by eligibility area (Table 4B). Additionally, Section 313.027(f)(2) allows districts to accept payments from companies for extraordinary educational expenses not funded by the school finance system. No districts to date have reported requesting any such funds.
